

August 2011: Nord-Lock Group acquires P&S Vorspannsysteme AG

Bringing together two of the most innovative and trusted bolt securing technologies

On August 2nd, P&S was acquired by Swedish company Nord-Lock International AB. As of this date we will, together with Superbolt Inc. in the U.S., be part of the Nord-Lock Group.

The Nord-Lock Group is a global provider of bolt securing systems. The products in the portfolio are acknowledged for their ability to secure critical bolting applications, just like Superbolt products. Thereby two of the most innovative and trusted bolt securing technologies are brought together.

“The acquisition of P&S and Superbolt is another giant step forward in our vision to be the undisputed global leader in bolt securing” says Mikael Helmersson, Managing Director of the Nord-Lock Group. “We have very high expectations for our new common future.”

Robert Steinbock, President of Superbolt Inc. continues “The synergies between Nord-Lock and Superbolt are the best we have seen of all the companies that we have ever considered joining with”. Together with Allan Steinbock, Vice-President, Robert is excited about the potential for the whole company and the ability of the group to now meet all bolt securing needs. The CEO of P&S, Roman Germann, concludes “Nord-Lock and Superbolt are active in the same sectors and our products are often used in the same challenging conditions”.

The combined competence of Superbolt and Nord-Lock is unique in the bolt-securing industry. We will be able to serve global customers with an impressive line-up of safe and cost effective solutions for critical applications.
